The grapes were harvested by hand on September 22 and the fermentation took place with the whole mash. Every day the mash was moved in the juice and after 21 days the grapes were pressed to get the fermented juice completely out of the berries.

Thereafter, the wine was filled in a 500 liter barrel of local acacia wood. In order to promote the aromatic tension of the Sauvignon Blanc, the yeast was stirred every second day within the first month.

The wine was bottled on April 30th.
