The grapes were harvested by hand on September 26 and the fermentation took place with the whole mash. The mash was daily moved in the juice and after 25 days the grapes were pressed to get the fermented juice completely out of the berries. Thereafter, the wine was filled in a 500 liter barrel of local acacia wood. Over a period of two months, the yeast was stirred several times, highlighting the delicate taste of the Roter Traminer. The wine was bottled on April 30th.
